Stay relevant

Keeping on top of legislative changes can be a challenge when advising clients.

This microcredential course is designed to refresh your knowledge and understanding of Australian company law, focusing on recent changes impacting the rights, responsibilities and conduct of businesses.

What has changed?

The recent Finance Sector Reforms have led to a series of measures intended to reduce complexity and open to flexible and adaptive to new business models, technologies, and practices, with the aim to promote business, economic development and employment.

Post-covid there have been several changes to Australian company law to help reduce the complexity of Australia's corporations and financial services laws to make them more adaptive, efficient, and navigable.
